During the 60th NFF Annual Awards Dinner on Dec. 5, 2017, 10 First-Team All-American players and three legendary coaches will take their places in the College Football Hall of Fame alongside the greatest of all time. Of the 5.19 million individuals who have played college football since Princeton first battled Rutgers on Nov. 6, 1869, only 1,201 champions of the gridiron (987 players and 214 coaches, including this year's class) have earned the right to be immortalized in the sport's ultimate shrine. In other words, only two ten-thousandths of one percent (.0002) of those who have played the game have earned the distinction.
